

Dogs don't understand that babies are important members of the family, too. Just like you, dogs can be jealous of the amount of time and attention the new baby needs.

You can be a responsible pet owner by giving your dog lots of extra attention after your parents bring the new baby home. You can even help your mom introduce your dog to the new baby. While your mom holds the new baby, and an adult holds your dog, you can pet your dog gently and give him food treats. This helps him know that things are going to be okay, even with a new baby in the house.
